

Arbitrary discretization

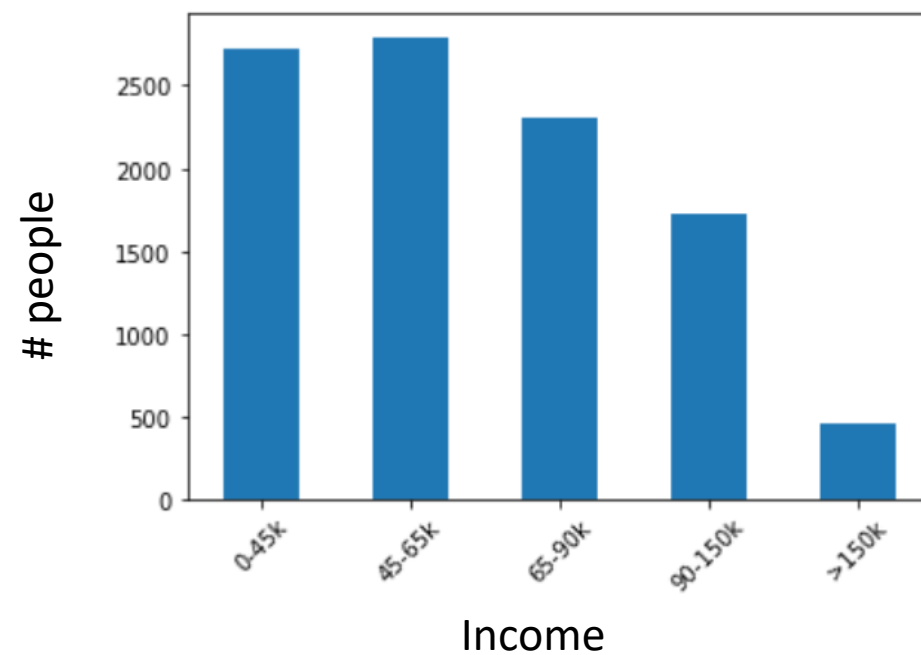

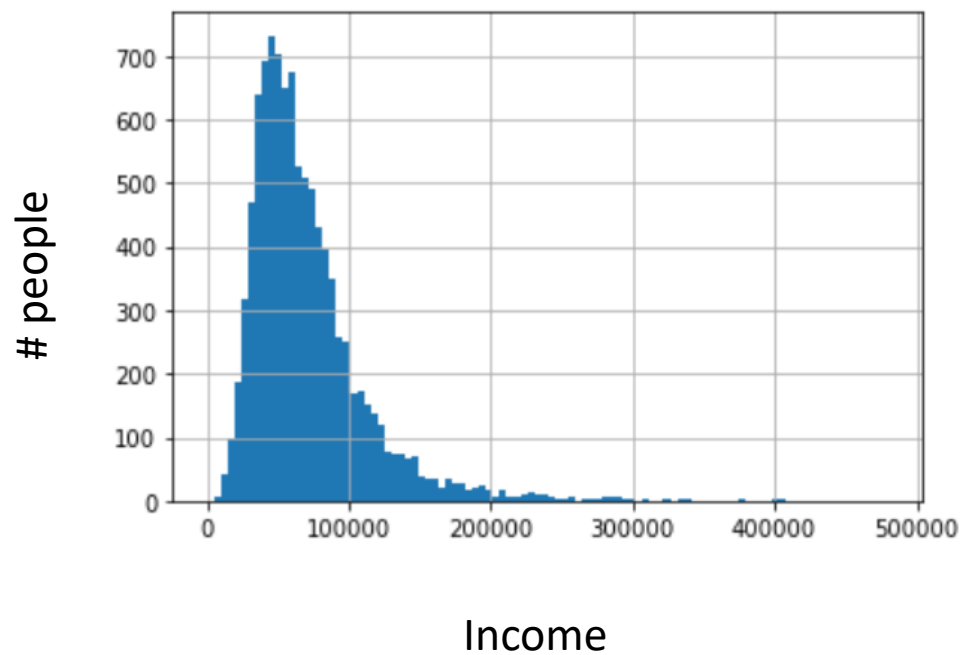

Arbitrary discretization

In various industries, it is common to group variable values in segments that make sense for the business.

For example, grouping age in intervals representing children, young adults, middle-aged and retired.

Or, grouping ratings in bad, good and excellent, based on their score.

Arbitrary discretization: income

THANK YOU

www.trainindata.com